THE WARREN CASE.

Trials for Several Months.

His Acquittal in Each and Every Case.

One of the most interesting cases which have occupied the time of our courts of late, three Omaha newspapers begun last is that of W. W. Warren, who was Thursday, will soon be like a thrice-told arrested in San Diego, Cal., on the 22nd of Oct., last, over seven months ago on the charge of defrauding the bank of Caldwell, Hamilton & Co. out of a considerable amount of money by checks given him by the Union Pacific and B. & M, roads for money not due him. The railroads were in reality working up the case and instigated the arrest.

On appearing in the police court. War-ren was at once discharged, as it was plain that the bank proprietors were not th ones to complain, as the checks pre-sented were bona fide checks given by the companies, who alone, if anyone could prosecute, must do so.

The two companies, upon this filed com-plaints against the defendant, charging him with obtaining money, which the checks represented, on false pretenses. He was indicted on both these complaints, and acquittsd on both. In the B. & M. case the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty without leaving their seats. Still determined to convict their victimals."

passed a new law in respect to such cases repealing all former laws, without any saving clause providing for prosecutions under the old law. The ground main-tained by Hon. J. C. Cowin, who argued Mr. Shelley expressed himself anxious tained by Hon. J. C. Cowin, who argued that the conflict should cease, and depreting the motion at considerable length, was stench arising from the old creek between cuted the strike, because he thought it that there is now no law whatever for the prosecution of this case, as no law can act retrospectively. The court concurred with General Cowin's views and again discharged him and his freedom does not rest upon this technicality, but as shown after proving in a long and trying ordeal to the satisfaction of courts and juries his entire innocence.

THE THOMAS CONCERT.

Opera House.

The Thomas concerts, which closed on Saturday evening, were the most elabo rate, brilliant and successful instrumental performances ever given in the city. The orchestra numbered sixty pieces, every one of which was in trained and skillful hands. Mr. Theodore Thomas, who is the best equipped leader in the United States, conducted the entire performances, and nothing whatever was wanting to the perfection of the whole, Mr. Thomas' system of leadership reaches to the bottom, and overlooks nothing essential to success in every respect. Not least among its excellencies is the handdling on the instruments, and this is best seen perhaps in the system of bowing he he has introduced. Every stringed instrument falls into the system, the bows of all moving together in the same direction. This method not only affords the appearance of perfect unison among the performers, but also insures absolute uniformity of treatment, and places the volume of sound, at every moment at the perfect disposal of the leader.

The BEE, in this general reviewal of street. the concerts, will not aim at a systematic notice, but will content, itself, with a grouping of the chief character star fea-

And, first, as to what were presented, here are the purely orchestral features of From Beethoythe three programmes. From Beethoven one piece was given at each concert:
The andante from the second symphony, the allegretto from the eighth symphony, and the famous Leonore overture, No. 3 From Mendelsson two instrumental selections were given: the overture to Ruy Blas and the overture to Midsummer Night's Dream. Of Weber also two specimens were given—the Invitation to the Dance, adapted by Hector Berloiz, and the Jubilee overture. Three characteristic pieces of Liszt were given—the Hungarian Rhapsody; a fantasia on Hungarian airs, with Rive-King at the piano, and the Symphonic Poem—Rossini's William Tell overture was presented; Schumann's Traumerei, a largo from Handel, with violin obligato, and the Strauss waltz, Beautiful Blue Danube.

The pieces de resistance, along with the pieces from Liszt were the selections from Wagner—the Lohengrin Vorspiel and the Tannhauser March and overture and the celebrated Berloiz composition, the Damnation of Faust. This last was first produced in this country about two years since by Mr. Thomas. Itembraces three movements (a) the Invocation Min-uet of the Will o' the Wisps; (b) Dance of the Sylphs; (c) the Rakoczy March These were the purely instrumental numbers. Then there were the following vocal numbers by members of the company, each with full orchestra accompanyment: Schubert's Am. Meer, by Frank Remmery; Rondo, from the Hu-guenots by Mrs. Cole: Scenes from Lohengrin; Sound an Alarm, from Handit's Judas: La Reine de Saba (Gounod) by Mrs. Allen; the Rigoletto quartette; the Evening Star romanza from Tannhauser, by Reenmary; O: Fatima from Weber's Aba Hassan, by Mrs. Cole; and the Beethoven Trio.

M'me Rive-King played Saint Saens' concerto in G minor; the Liszt fantasia on Hung on an Ain, and the Chopin con certo in E minor.

The Omaha chorus sang two choruses from Wagner's Lohengrin at the first concert and closed the second concert with four selections from Hondit's Messiah. In this last, however, the orchestra pretty nearly drowned the singers out, a circumstance wholly unnecessry, inasmuch as the chorus was thoroughly up in the music. But for this unfortunate and needless circumstance the choruses. Lift up your Head and Hallelujah would have been among the prime attractions of the concert. In both of those elaborate selections the chorus was fully prepared, and did a work which only needed to be heard to be fully appreciated. There were about 150 voices engaged, with the Harmonica Society and the Omaha Glee Club as a base. The services of Mr. David Blakely, who has had the voices in the immediate training for two weeks should not be overlooked: while those of Nelson, Mayer and Smith, the leaders of the clubs, must not be forgotten. The local singers had, at best, an ungrateful task, and it is to be regretted that through the manifest inattention of Mr. Thomas their efforts should not have been permitted to speak for themselves.

Among the orchestral selections, all of which were given in a perfectly characteristic manner, the most notable were the Beethoved andante at the first concert, a composition in perfect classical style; the music from the 2d symphony, which was very peculiar, and was beauti-fully rendered; the Invitation to the Dance, which is German to the last de-gree, and embraced a vast deal of fine playing, with great rapidity and precision of movement, and last, but not least, the damnation of Faust, in which every refinement of orchestral playing is required. To these should, however, be added the Hungarian Rhapsody, which is an original composition of Liszt's in the Hungarian style.

Mr. Thomas' singers all did better in bery. She had been up to Morse's dry the concerted pieces than in single selecpieces; and they did best of all in the Messiah selections, particularly Miss She wore a light colored dress and in the side of the sacque she carried her portmonnae, containing about $59. As she turned off from Farnham on to 10th was discovered, though can be little so unsympathetic and so cold. Her mas-doubt but it was taken by the party who terpiece was the Saint-Saens concerto in rushed by so unceremoniously as the three parts, the last of which consists of victim turned off on 20th str. three parts, the last of which consists of pure "gymnastics."

pure "gymnastics."
Upon the whole, these concerts have been of a character new to the Omaha public; and if they shall prove the beginning of a better understanding and of accord among the singers and musicians of our city, their effect will not depart with them. Had the weather not been so oppressively hot, the attendance would have been much better—enough better to doubtess have relieved Mr. Boyd from the necessity of paying out two or three hundred dollars from his own pocket. This is to be greatly regretted; for, certainly, Omaha has never enjoyed so varied and rare a musical treat, and it is to be presumed that that thefuture depends materially on the success of this experiment. In this light, the financial los sto Mr. Boyd is sincerely to be regretted,
